The Auditorium.

There are some very pretty as well as interesting pictures shown at the Auditorium for the latter part of this week, and it would be hard to pick out any one as the best. Owing to the excellent program secured for three days the popular subject, King of the Ring. The realistic fight scene in this is one of the best ever staged. A special feature for the children is the beautiful colored picture, What Three Tots Saw in the Land of Nod, and is on the idea of the Little Nemo series now appearing in one of the New York papers. A collection of Postage Stamps is an interesting as well as an educational subject, showing in color the different stamps of all nations, also the national costumes and dances of the various countries represented. Other subjects are A Persistent Suit and The Child of the Regiment. The attractive vaudeville bill, headed by Cecile Morris & Co., continues to attract large patronage, and is without a doubt one of the best shows seen in the city at popular prices.

AT THE RODERICK.

A large and enthusiastic audience greets the change of programme at the Roderick on Friday and all were delighted with the fine and varied bill. The picture entitled Magic Music was given close attention as the exciting scenes were enacted. It is a story of great heart interest and portrayed the human emotions at their deepest. The vaudeville provided many a laugh and The Musician is a comedy feature. The Drama Among Fishermen is a tale of the Sicilian coast and combines love and tragedy with vengeance. Another good film is The Circus. Mr. Dudley won great favor with the illustrated song What Will the Answer Be? Miss Heffernan sings the winsome Scotch ballad Bonnie, My Highland Lassie, in a most charming way. She also by special request repeats the Spanish waltz song Senora.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

Vindicating Lilley.

President Taft's desire to make a saving in the maintenance of navy yards with a view to cutting down the naval appropriations for 1911 will meet with the approval of all the reasonable taxpayers of this country. In making his investigations with Secretary Meyer, President Taft will beyond question find that the indictment against extravagance in navy yard and naval station maintenance brought by Congressman Lilley from Connecticut is correct and that the methods of economy indicated by him are practical and productive of good results. Since the late Governor Lilley was pounced upon by the elements of fraud, graft and humbug at Washington, for daring to question the stultification of naval methods and management, events have been working out his vindication astoundingly. He was the one man who dared to put his finger on the spot that made the "galled jade" worse, and for that he was crushed—Bridgeport Standard.

"For Sale" in Hartford.

Riding through Hartford the other day the Observer noted many "for sale" signs that are posted in all the residence streets. Fine mansions and great places on every side have the pathetic sign telling that the houses are no longer homes and that the families that once dwelt in the stately walls have passed on or lost their love for their homes. A new "for sale" sign has been posted on the lawn of the fine Jewell home, where Governor Lilley died the other day. Here in Holyoke we also never see a "for sale" sign posted on a lawn. People who have houses and lots to sell either advertise in the Transcript or tell the real estate agents about it and they do the advertising in the Transcript. And there are practically no homes for sale in Holyoke, perhaps because we know better how to sell them here.—Holyoke Transcript.

The Call of the Farm.

Even in the neighborhood of cities there are often tracts of land to be obtained at a reasonable price which are of unusual value because of their nearness to markets. Many of these have been allowed to run down as the city grows instead of being brought to the highest pitch of cultivation by modern intensive processes. Hundreds of old orchards which once were valuable property are being allowed to die out without any effort to replace them. Farms which once were noted throughout the country for their great apple orchards make no effort to produce either of the two great staples which are in constant demand at all seasons. Bees are growing rarer in farmhouses, quinces, peaches and pear trees are few and far between. Good cherries are the rarest of fruits, and yet thirty years ago the country was white with cherry blossoms every April. The demand for all these things has greatly increased, but little effort is being made to supply it. Perhaps trees take too long to grow for impatient Americans to take delight in planting them, but those who have the patience to wait will find them profitable.—Bridgeport Telegram.

Among the Rosies and Lillies.
Rosie Punch and Lillie Hen are the delightful names of two ladies who appeared in court proceedings in New York the other day for their own real estate mortgages. In the newspaper mention of the proceedings there was nothing to show whether the ladies are suffragettes, but they have beautifully appropriate names for the cause. Rosie Punch and Lillie Hen ought to be enlisted under the votes for women banner, and they will be very soon if Carrie Catt shows any enterprise.—Topics of the Day, Providence Journal.

HOME GARMENT MAKING.

The Bulletin's Pattern Service.

GIRL'S BATHING SUIT.

Developed in any colored or white mohair, French flannel or pongee, this is a simple bathing suit for the growing girl. The Russian blouse in front with a round Dutch neck and short flowing sleeves, the fullness being held in place by thin belt, which fastens in the front with small pearl buttons. This belt is slipped through narrow straps at the under-arm axils and is of contrasting material, similar material being used for the trimming band, under which the blouse closes. The full bloomers are attached to an under-waist of elastic and are gathered into the knees by elastic run through the hem-casing. Cotton sashette matching the band in color trims the neck and sleeves.
The pattern is in five sizes—4 to 12 years. For a girl of 8 years the bathing suit requires yards of material 27 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 36 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide or 2 yards 54 inches wide; as illustrated, yard of contrasting material 6 or more inches wide and 4 yards of braid.
Order through The Bulletin Company, Pattern Dept., Norwich, Conn.

HIS IS IN NATURE OF BLUFF.

Sound Emitted by Cat as a Protection Against Enemies.

"Do you know why a cat hisses when in rage or anger?" said a nature student. "Well, sir, she hisses as a flying criminal puts on goggles and a false beard. With that hiss she tries instinctively to disguise herself as a snake."

"Did you ever notice the markings on a cat's tail? They are transverse, like a snake's markings. The primitive cat in the wild state lived in rather tall grass. When danger approached he hissed, and at the same time put up his tail and waved it slowly. The onlooker heard that serpentine hiss; he saw the tail—and only the tail—which waved in ominous, serpentine manner; he said, 'Snake in the grass' and withdrew."

The cat of to-day, hissing horribly and waving to and fro his erect tail, follows ancestral precedent. It helps him not at all, nevertheless he always does it, thinking it the right thing. Is not man sometimes like the cat in this respect?"

American Towers of Babel.

In a single block in New York there are 1,400 people of 20 distinct nationalities. There are more than two-thirds as many native-born Irish in Boston as in the capital city, Dublin. With their children, mainly of pure Irish blood, they make Boston indubitably the leading Irish city in the world. New York is a larger Italian city to-day than Rome, having 500,000 Italian colonists. It contains no less than 800,000 Jews, mainly from Russia. Thus it is also the foremost Jewish city in the world. Pittsburgh, the center of our iron and steel industry, is another tower of Babel. It is said to contain more of that out-of-the-way people, the Servians, than the capital of Serbia itself.—Atlantic Monthly.

POETRY.

TO GEORGE MEREDITH.

O Master, from the all you learned,
Above the cloudy mountain brinks,
And at the edge where sunsets burned,
And amongst men—deep have you turned.
The smiling eyelids of the sphynx
Invisible upon her paw sits death—
Confronted by her visage dimly
With all the dear solemnity of breath,
And smiling eyelids of mysterious thought.

If men shall mock at mimicry in stone,
Which is not beast nor woman, whole
nor half,
Let them but look what structure is
Of unimagined flesh and vanished
And listen at her lips and hear her laugh!

O Meredith, this creature you have left,
With ample flanks, and poetry on her
brow,
This wonder you have builded strong
and deft,
Shall strive for centuries as calm as
now!

She shall behold the mortal multitude
Passing in joy, in vanity, in grief,
The vast mirage amazingly renewed,
The fury of the everlasting feud,
The green returning of the desert
leaf.

With death among the sands upon her
path,
And desert round her she shall sit
content,
And behold, shall contemplate
awe,
Man and his covering of firmament.

Silently, rarely, in good time,
Great master of the minds of men,
You builded to a wider clime,
Than Egypt, and have left, sublime,
A sphynx to tease the world again.
—Walter Byrner.

LILACS.

Adown a way with lilacs lined I went,
The purple of the plumes just breaking through,
And half-forgotten dreams within me
pent,
No longer phantoms, back to beauty
grew;
And when I mourned as dead sprang
into life anew.

Shadows of leaves the wind blew to
and fro
Were drifting, golden, o'er the sun-
drenched ground,
And the blue heavens above and
earth below
With silence seemed a-throb, as if Springing from the heart of the music flooding it too exquisite for sound.

The mist shone on the hills like happy
te
